

Alaine's Story

My entire entrepreneur career has been with people in public and business settings. When advised to change professions, because of a physical limitation, I was incredulous at how circumstances needed to shift.

Walking through life challenges and supporting my husband, who was diagnosed with Parkinson's at forty nine, brought me to despair and lose life's focus. Once I became aware, I began developing myself, attending classes, becoming unstuck, making a huge shift in the right direction. The class instructor who was a coach encouraged me to pursue Newfield Network coaching in Colorado.

I persevered and received an Ontological Newfield Network Coaching NCC certificate. With continued education, I acquired the ICF International Coaching Federation certificate, School Of Emotions certificate and Youth Coaching credentials. I also have background in supporting traumatic stress.

I've seen firsthand that anything can be accomplished when stepping out in faith and it's possible to turn problems into opportunities. Victory is achievement of mastery or finding success in an endeavor against odds or difficulties. My passion is to assist others to learn to find their victory in life, go deeper to see new possibilities, take risks and dream big.

As a Personal Development Coach, I partner with clients to excel to a deeper level of self-awareness, inspire goals, and maximize potential. I support and help bridge the gap between where you are and where you want to be personally.

Blessings, Alaine
